Questions to consider:

- ✓ What does our own research say about middle leaders in NSW public education?
- ✓ How can middle leaders continue to strengthen their leadership development?
- ✓ How has the School Leadership Institute responded and what are our next steps?

"If we truly believe that leadership is about growth of self and others, then we must start with ourselves. Amid the complexity we nurture our own learning and commit to maintaining that journey.

We also need to enable others who are leaders to learn about their own leadership, so they can have agency over it and can experience a real sense of self-efficacy as leaders in enabling the growth of others."

Middle leaders matter

The importance of middle leaders

Leading from the middle regards those in the middle not just as a mediating layer that connects the bottom to the top, but as expressing and addressing the heart and soul of leadership at its core...leading from the middle is not just a level or a tier. It is the heart, the soul, the backbone, and the guts of leadership.

Andy Hargreaves (2020)

Findings

Which teachers are being appointed to formal middle leadership positions?

- 74% female
- 64% between ages 41 - 60
- 92% 10+ years teaching experience
- 65% 0–9 leadership experience
- 39% new (0–5 years) to role

Top Tasks across the Roles

Tensions between administration and 'leading'

“There is a lot of administration, documentation and data analysis to do. Monitoring programs /staff/student progress is ongoing and rather relentless – I think it is all a 'checklist' level of proficiency.”

“I do more administration than I teach or prepare lessons.”

“A lot of the roles performed by middle management require a delicate balancing act between teaching and administration. Much more of my time is being taken up with administration and compliance processes.”

Findings

What are the roles and responsibilities formal middle leaders are enacting?

- Seven roles: Developing staff, Student-centred, Administration, Organising people, Curriculum-centred, Supervising staff, Leading learning and change
- Most frequent roles: Supervising staff, Student-centred roles, Curriculum-centred roles
- Head Teachers (High school) appeared to be engaging in administration more than Assistant Principals (Primary school).
- Additional roles: External liaison, Staff wellbeing, Parent liaison, Leading extra-curricular, Relieving higher duties

The moral purpose of NSW public education

The commitment 'to prepare our learners for rewarding lives as engaged citizens in a complex and dynamic society' underpins the moral purpose of the NSW public education system. Public education is the enabler of equality and opportunity for all young people. Across NSW, diverse communities of learners are nurtured within the richness and values of a large, complex system – a system that is driven by a deeply held belief that every child can improve every day 'no matter where they live or what kind of learning challenges they may face.'

The catalyst for achieving the 'Education Goals for Young Australians' is an urgent, unwavering focus on 'excellence and equity' through continuous improvement in the quality of teaching and learning in our public schools.

Assistant principals and head teachers enact this moral purpose by placing every child and young person at the centre of all decisions.

The primary purpose of the role

Assistant principals and head teachers in NSW public schools support the principal and teachers in preparing young people for rewarding lives as engaged citizens in a complex and dynamic society by maximising the learning, wellbeing and progress of every student every year. They inspire and motivate children and young people, staff, and the school community. They model reflective practices and set high expectations of leaders, teachers, students and self.

Assistant principals and head teachers are critical to ensuring the success of teaching and learning, promoting an inclusive and enabling culture. They build leadership capabilities and support ethical and purposeful school and team practices. Their role is characterised by their educational expertise, their ability to effectively lead teams, and their strategic leadership. They are responsive to the changing circumstances specific to their students, teachers, school and community.

Assistant principals and head teachers contribute to the school's strategic vision, which is aligned to the department's priorities. They work in partnership with the principal, executive team, staff and community to develop and facilitate a positive school culture. They are collaborative, collegial and empathetic leaders who work closely with others to create and sustain the conditions in which the values of public education flourish.

Assistant principals and head teachers are part of the school executive team.

The assistant principal and head teacher

Leadership with integrity, courage and compassion is fundamental to create and sustain the positive conditions in which learning can flourish. Assistant principals and head teachers who create conditions that enable sustained improvement in teaching, and therefore student learning, have a significant influence on student outcomes. There is a clear link between quality leadership approaches and practices, and teaching and student learning.³

The research also acknowledges the complexity of leadership and recognises that highly effective school leaders use a range of interconnecting leadership approaches and practices in order to impact teaching and student learning.⁴

Key accountabilities

Assistant principals and head teachers are accountable to the deputy principal and/or principal. They work with the principal, other executive, teaching and non-teaching staff to support the leadership, management and improvement of the school, within departmental guidelines and policies.

Senior Leadership – Aspiring Principals Leadership Program

A 12-month learning program that develops the leadership capabilities of senior leaders (assistant and deputy principals) and helps lead school improvement.

Senior Leadership – Aspiring Principals Leadership Program (SL–APLP)

Participants analyse their current practice, develop new learnings and reflect on the impact of their leadership actions by leading an inquiry in their context guided by the School Leadership Institute Leadership for Learning frameworks.

'I think it is something everyone should do. I think it is invaluable. We look at leadership and often particularly I work out in rural and regional remote schools most of my career; and the fact that you don't always have access to something as good and as high quality as this. The fact that we lead every day, whether we're a classroom teacher or a deputy or a principal. And the fact you have the time to develop your leadership, I think is key for the future of education.' ADAM
